

Nebraska Coalition
for Lifesaving Cures

The Newsletter of the Nebraska Coalition for Lifesaving Cures
October, 2013

Researchers Warn of Dangers Associated with Fake, Untested Stem Cell Research

Medical researchers are concerned that people are falling for counterfeit stem cell treatments despite the fact that these 'therapies' have not yet been proven and many may even be downright dangerous, The Irish Times reports.

Majority of stem cell treatments are suffering from incurable degenerative diseases, who are ready to do anything for a cure. These fake stem cell treatment manufacturers prey on this desire and extort thousands in return for bogus therapies.

Full Story in Nature World News \(9-10-2013\)

A closer look at Stem Cell treatments

Concerns about Stem Cell tourism

Patients Guide to Stem Cell treatments

Nebraska Science Festival to Return in 2014 With Expanded Programming

The Nebraska Science Festival will return in 2014 with expanded programming that offers greater opportunities for students of all ages. Once again, the Nebraska Coalition for Lifesaving Cures is a proud co-sponsor of the event.

In its second year, the Nebraska Science Festival – scheduled for April 24-27, 2014 – will feature an array of science- and technology-related activities, while extending programming into Lincoln as it builds toward being a statewide celebration.

More Information on the Nebraska Science Festival

Paul Knoepfler

Mark Your Calendars: Paul Knoepfler coming to Omaha

Paul Knoepfler, an American biologist, writer, and blogger, is coming to Omaha from April 24-27th. Paul is a cancer survivor, patient advocate, writer, and is currently the only faculty level academic blogger on stem cell research in the world. He was named one of the 50 Most Influential People in the Stem Cell Field in 2013 by the World Stem Cell Congress.

Mark your calendars and watch for future details!

[To learn more about Paul visit his website \[www.ipsell.com\]](http://www.ipsell.com)

Follow us on Facebook & Twitter

Visit the New NebraskaCures.com

The Nebraska Coalition for Lifesaving Cures gave its Website a facelift in August. Everything you want to know about us and about stem cells can now be found at www.nebraskacures.com.

We will continually be adding to the site as we go along. We hope if you have a topic you want to know more about or have information we should include on our site, you will let us know.

Welcome to Nebraska Cures.

Nebraska Coalition
for Lifesaving Cures